PITCH

Every night the Starforger travels the world and covers the sky with stars.
But one day, one of them doesn't want to go...

DIRECTORS' NOTES

Through this story we talk about change and the impact it can have on our lives: whether we are adults or children, it is often something that frightens us. On all levels, even the smallest things can disturb us if they change. That's why we made a simple film that shows in a poetic way that change, despite our apprehensions, can be positive.

We wanted to make a film for children, so we decided on a tale. When she was little, Maëlle's grandmother used to tell her stories, and she loved listening to them. So we think it's an effective way to convey complex ideas to a young audience, while also touching adults.

To achieve that soft, tale-like atmosphere we did the backgrounds in digital with some traditional touches added, like watercolor textures. The animation also has those effects.

ABOUT THE DIRECTORS

The first time we worked together was as a duo, and for our end of first year film. Despite the lockdown and the distance we enjoyed working together.

So much that in the second year we were often in the same group projects, and again made our end of second year film together !

The soft and poetic stories we like brought us closer, and our styles that match well, pushed us to work together and explore our universe further.
