PITCH

Pierre, an old man, receives a mysterious plant. While he lost his wife, said plant will put him in a life or death struggle...

SYNOPSIS

Pierre is a widow and has yet to work through his grief. He almost never goes out and lives surrounded in mementos of his shared life with his wife. One day he receives a mysterious plant and decides to shelter it. He cares and waters the plant on a daily basis, but its needs grow exponentially, craving for more water and attention. Exhausted Pierre slumbers on the couch, watering can in hand. He's awoken by his wife's dress, which appears to float, controlled by the plant's branches. Driven by melancholy and tiredness Pierre dances with the plant, happy yet consumed by nostalgia. Suddenly the dress rips apart and Pierre falls. When he comes back to his senses, he and his house are covered in branches and everything around him is crumbling. Pierre picks up shears and walks up to the plant. However he is still affected by bitterness and can't go through with cutting the plant. That's when a branch wrapped in the dress' tatters gently covers his hand, which gives him the courage to cut the plant. After a short while, Pierre burrows the plant in his garden and let the light enters his house.
